Public Comment

Veronika Carella: Good morning and thank you for letting me speak. I am the legislative director for the Maryland Children's Environmental Health Coalition and I serve for 12 years on CEHPAC as well. So I just wanted to bring a quick update to the three points. . October 1st of this year, we now have the Clean Water Justice Act of 2024 and I will be putting the bill and the fiscal note links into the written version of my public input that I always sent you the email afterwards. So this Act further expands a definition of standing beyond the information that our coalition provided at last month's public input, which included the request to please take steps to clarify to the public and to enforcing state and local agencies such as the Maryland Department of Agriculture.

Complaints can be filed and should be addressed when Maryland laws and regulations appear to be violated or lack enforcement. In efforts to address PFOS contamination in groundwater and drinking wells, which was the subject we discussed last month in my public input. And in that quote, MDE officials say that this is an ongoing search for potential PFOS contamination and they've been analyzing samples from non-residential providers such as schools and that speaks to what I said. Last time that here we should have PFOS being applied since 2018 on a 10 acre. Lots within a half a mile of the two schools. In Howard County. MDE just found high levels of PFOS in their wells and they now have to go to bottled water. So this is something we had to act in 2018 when we first discovered that PFOS was listed as an ingredient In These MDA approved turf applications . This will contaminate groundwater and impact the wells. Nothing has been done since 2018, since then there have been 91 days of applications on these 10 lots and sometimes over a hundred gallons on, just three acres at a time of these products that contain PEAFAH. So it's time to take a fresh look at that.
